action in cases of this kind.

Notwithstanding this, I feel that there are circumstances in your uncle's case which cought to appeal strongly to the pardoning power, and I carnestly hope that such representations may be made to your Governor as will avert the execution of the death sentence which has been pronounced. Very truly yours, Governor would give his reasons for commuting Col. King's sentence.

"With pleasure," said the Governor, wand I will do it briefly. First I thought that King should have had a change of venue. Affidarits to the effect that Juror Smith had communicated with outside parties and expressed an opinion about the case were filed with me. These affidavits could not be introduced in the court of record because it was too late.

"The action of Juror Mustin and of the jury n going to Arkansas to deliberate upon th ase had their weight too; the dissension of he Supreme Judges in the defense of partial insanity; the pleadings of his wife and chilren and the most prominent men of the country, besides the hundreds of letters and petilons-those were my reasons for commuting he sentence.

"I am responsible for my action," said the Governor. "I thought I was doing right and ted according to my belief." He then handed to the reporter a petition for the commutation signed by twenty-six United States Senators and Congressmen.
